Systems of journal ranking can be arbitrary and problematic, particularly in highly specialized academic fields where journals are of limited scope and circulation. One field in which journal ranking is problematic is interior design. This article addresses existing ranking systems for academic journals and explores the limitations of these ranking systems. An attempt is made to suggest effective methods that could be developed for ranking interior design journals. The multiple factors that need to be considered in ranking journals in such a specialized field are discussed, including ranking bias, categorical specialization, and geographic and institutional variables. Implications of this review indicate that journal ranking for interior design should be considered within the context of relevant specialized journals rather than the current practice that places interior design in a broad comparative ranking system outside of its field. Multiple cross-referencing measurements, including impact factors, subject-specific citation rates, and acceptance rates, as well as prestige factors based on peer perceptual ranking of interior design journals need to be implemented. Faculty and institutional evaluations need to be based on composite factors that take into account not only a meaningful journal ranking system, but also a broader, and at the same time more accurate, metric to include the actual value of the publication itself, the focus of research, and the goals of the individual and of the institution.

Practitioners' Perceptions of Interior Design.

OBJECTIVE: The objective of this study is to determine the perceptions of leaders of interior design practitioner organizations regarding the purpose, need, and importance of graduate education.

RESEARCH DESIGN: Two surveys were conducted using a modified DELPHI technique. Responses from the first survey were used to generate questions for the second survey. Targeted respondents included the top two tiers of leadership of the member organizations of the Unified Voice Task Force.

ANALYSIS: The data were analyzed using cross-tabular presentation with chi-square or the Fisher Exact Test used to determine statistical significance.

KEY FINDINGS: Although practitioners recognize that graduate education can develop an area of practice specialization and result in scholarship that expands the body of knowledge, there appears to be confusion regarding the purpose, need, and importance of graduate education to interior design. The practitioners indicated that specialization could be achieved through continuing education, and they appear to view the development of the body of knowledge from an insular position as opposed to broadening the intellectual foundation of the profession.

CONCLUSIONS: Increased collaboration among industry, practice, and education is needed to rectify the problems that presently exist with graduate education in the field of interior design.

HBRS 10 MUST READS ON STRATEGIC MARKETING WITH FEATURED ARTICLE AEUROEMARKETING MYOPIAAEUR BY THEODORE LEVITT

When did Theodore Levitt write marketing myopia? But the defining moment for marketing as a defined concept is often dated to 1960 when The Harvard Business Review published the article Marketing Myopia by Theodore Levitt. In the article, Levitt states that for companies to ensure continued growth, they must define the industry they are in broadly.

Who wrote the book Marketing Myopia? In Marketing Myopia, Theodore Levitt offers examples of companies that became obsolete because they misunderstood what business they were in and thus what their customers wanted.

What is the levitt theory of marketing? Strategic planning and marketing should prioritize the needs of customers. Levitt argued that a company's marketing plan should consider the customer's point of view rather than just selling a product. Levitt stated that when a business fails, the blame is usually focused on the saturation of products in the market.

What's the best explanation of marketing myopia? Marketing Myopia refers to a narrow-minded approach to marketing wherein businesses focus excessively on their products or services rather than understanding and catering to the needs and desires of their customers. This tunnel vision can lead to missed opportunities and hinder long-term business growth.

What is the conclusion of marketing myopia? In conclusion, marketing myopia remains a persistent challenge for businesses in an increasingly dynamic and competitive marketplace. Theodore Levitt's seminal concept continues to resonate today as companies grapple with the complexities of staying relevant, innovative, and customer-focused.

What is the thesis of marketing myopia? Marketing myopia is a situation in which a company views marketing from its own point of view and with its own objectives in mind. The most common definition of marketing myopia is provided in the opening lines of the article, which is: "Every major industry was once a growth industry."

What did Theodore Levitt say? Theodore Levitt Quotes The purpose of a business is to get and keep a customer. Without customers, no amount of engineering wizardry, clever financing, or operations expertise can keep a company going. Creativity is thinking up new things. Innovation is doing new things.

Who is the father of marketing myopia? Theodore Levitt's 1960 article "Marketing Myopia" is a business classic that earned its author the nickname "the father of modern marketing". It is also a beautiful demonstration of the problem solving skills that are crucial in so many areas of life – in business and beyond.

When was myopia founded? When Did Myopia First Appear? The first references to the condition appeared in records written by Aristotle around 350 B.C. However, it wasn't until the late 15th century that the first lenses for myopia were created in Europe.

Whose contribution is the landmark study of marketing myopia? Marketing Myopia was first expressed in an article by Theodore Levitt in Harvard Business Review.

What did Theodore Levitt say? Theodore Levitt Quotes The purpose of a business is to get and keep a customer. Without customers, no amount of engineering wizardry, clever financing, or operations expertise can keep a company going. Creativity is thinking up new things. Innovation is doing new things.

How to Expand Your LinkedIn Network: A Comprehensive Guide**

LinkedIn, the professional networking platform, has become an essential tool for career growth and business development. With over 930 million members worldwide, it offers a massive opportunity to connect with potential clients, colleagues, and industry leaders. While building a robust network takes time and effort, understanding the key strategies can significantly accelerate your progress.

How to Get 10,000 Connections on LinkedIn

Reaching the 10,000 connection mark on LinkedIn is a significant milestone. To achieve it, follow these steps:

- Optimize Your Profile: Your profile is your online resume, so make it professional and engaging. Use a high-quality headshot, write a compelling summary, and showcase your skills and experience.
- Engage with Your Network: Participate in discussions, like and comment on others' posts, and share relevant content. This helps you build relationships and increase your visibility.
- Join Groups: Participate in LinkedIn groups relevant to your industry and interests. Engage with other members, ask questions, and share insights.
- Connect Strategically: Don't just send out random connection requests. Focus on connecting with people who are in your target audience or can contribute to your professional growth.
- Use LinkedIn Premium: LinkedIn Premium offers features like InMail and extended search filters, which can make it easier to find and connect with potential contacts.

How Can I Get 500+ Connections Faster on LinkedIn?

To accumulate 500+ connections quickly, consider these tactics:

- Use the "People You May Know" Feature: LinkedIn suggests potential connections based on your network and activity. Send personalized connection requests highlighting why you want to connect.
- Attend Virtual Events: LinkedIn hosts numerous webinars and workshops. Participate in these events to meet and connect with attendees.

- Engage with LinkedIn Stories: Share your insights and experiences through LinkedIn Stories. This format can help you reach a wider audience and attract connections.
- Contribute to LinkedIn Pulse: Writing articles or sharing industry perspectives on LinkedIn Pulse can establish you as a thought leader and attract connections from your target audience.

How do I Quickly Add Connections on LinkedIn?

For rapid connection growth, employ these techniques:

- Use LinkedIn Sales Navigator: This tool allows you to search and filter potential connections based on specific criteria, making it easier to target and connect with the right people.
- Integrate with Email: Import your email contacts into LinkedIn and send automated connection requests to those who are not yet on the platform.
- Become an Active Member: Regularly engage with your network, share updates, and comment on posts. This helps you stay top-of-mind and increases the chances that others will connect with you.

How do I Add More Than 30000 Connections on LinkedIn?

Exceeding the 30,000 connection limit requires a highly active and targeted approach:

- Become an Open Networker: Connect with anyone who is relevant to your professional interests, even if you don't know them personally.

- Join Multiple Groups: Participate in numerous LinkedIn groups and actively engage with other members. This expands your reach and connection opportunities.
- Consider LinkedIn Automation: Use tools like LinkedIn Helper or Dux-Soup to automate connection requests and messaging. However, use these tools with caution to avoid spamming.

How to Bypass LinkedIn 100 Connection Limit?

The 100 connection limit for free LinkedIn accounts can be bypassed using these methods:

- Use InMail: LinkedIn Premium members can send InMail messages to non-connections, allowing them to bypass the connection limit.
- Join Premium Groups: Premium groups allow members to connect with anyone within the group, regardless of their connection status.
- Participate in LinkedIn Pulse: Sharing valuable content on LinkedIn Pulse can attract connections who are interested in your insights.
